The Volcano Group chooses Servair to design and build a central kitchen in Cairo

Paris, 6 May 2014 - Servair, the French market leader and third-largest company worldwide in airline catering and logistics has agreed to an engineering contract with the Volcano Group for the design and construction of a central kitchen located in Cairo.

The signing of this new contract will leverage Servair's expertise and reinforce its position on the African continent and in the Middle East.

Led by Egyptian property group Volcano, the kitchen will serve local authorities as well as the universities of Cairo and Alexandria (providing up to 30,000 student meals a day). The new central kitchen is planned to open in the last quarter of 2014. In view of the project's imminent start, a temporary kitchen will be set up between 1 June and 31 August.

The planned facility in Cairo will be owned and financed by the Volcano Group, with Servair holding an option to purchase 30% of the shares.

Present in Africa since 1989, Servair has gradually established itself as a major player in airline catering on the continent by building strong local partnerships at each facility. It currently operates twenty catering units in Africa, which not only comply with international standards, but also take into account the unique characteristics of each local area. New sites form part of an international development strategy designed to strengthen Servair's position as market leader across the African continent.

SERVAIR is the leading French and African operator in the airline catering and cleaning business. Ranked third on a worldwide basis, with its partners and subsidiaries, SERVAIR offers airlines a range of essential services to air transport and passenger comfort at approximately 40 airports around the world. Its requirements in terms of quality and know-how have made Servair a real driving force for its 120 client companies, to help them improve their different commercial offers to passengers, whilst ensuring strict compliance with the requirements of transport.
